The "Badger" Reports

The News of Ship

Each Day

The battleship Wisconsin has about all the comfort of home, including a daily newspaper, called the Badger Builettin. There is also issmed from the Ship's printing office a monthly magazine called the Badger, which would be a credit to any shop on land. The last number, issued at Yokohama shortly before the ship left that pott, contains a history of the Wisconsin's doings since she went into commission, and especially of her stay in Asiatic waters. The editor is Robert D. Jones. The magazine is "devoted to the interests of You, Him and Me."
